Eagle Lake Trail is a 2-mile paved pathway stretching from Del City to Eastern Avenue in neighboring Oklahoma City. This short riverside trail, with a few extensions, could connect some of the Oklahoma City metro's prominent trails. It starts at Eagle Lake in Del City and winds west along the North Canadian River, which flows into the mighty Oklahoma. The trail ducks under I-40, Reno Avenue and finally curves underneath Eastern Avenue and back up to the roadway level to its endpoint. To reach the Oklahoma River Trails, continue west following the dirt road that sits right on the south bank of the river (next to the American Indian Cultural Center) for about 1 mile. Near it's western endpoint, the Eagle Lake Trail also passes near the beginning of the South Grand Trail on E Grand Boulevard, but unfortunately, no direct connector exists between the two trails.
