As its name suggests, this short rail-trail and rail-with-trail provides a route for cyclists and pedestrians to travel between Buchanan Avenue and Circle Boulevard in the city of Corvallis. The paved trail prizes function over beauty, traveling through an industrial area (on the route of a former railroad spur) and then following a set of still active railroad tracks as the trail hugs the side of the Pacific Highway. While not much to look at, the Circle to Buchanan Multi-Modal Path does offer about a mile of uninterrupted pathway, augmenting the area's transportation network.
