The 7-mile Iron Horse Trail (open in two disconnected segments) utilizes approximately 2 miles of former Penn Central right-of-way, providing users a pleasant route through neighborhoods, as well as a link to Centerville's Iron Horse Park and Kettering's State Farm Park. In the north, the paved pathway connects to Dayton's Creekside Trail, which itself leads to other trails feeding into the city's vibrant downtown.

The many trails in the area are components of the 330-mile Miami Valley trail system, one of the nation's largest networks of paved, off-street trails.
