

2024

TrailLink Unlimited

Guides

Cameron Station Linear Park

Virginia

Cameron Station Linear Park

Virginia

Cameron Station Linear Park is the quintessential neighborhood trail. Located in Alexandria, a suburb of Washington, D.C., it offers

Brenman Park, crossing a bridge over Holmes Run on the park's east side, and connect to the Holmes Run Trail, which parallels the waterway for more than five miles.

Cameron Station Linear Park is the quintessential neighborhood trail. Located in Alexandria, a suburb of Washington, D.C., it offers a pleasant paved pathway frequented by joggers, dog walkers, families and bikers out for a leisurely ride. At either end is a popular park with a playground, restrooms, and picnic tables: Ben Brenman Park on its east end and Armistead Boothe Park on its west end. Near the latter is also Samuel W. Tucker Elementary School.

The route is dotted with trees; between them you can catch glimpses of Backlick Run. On the other side of the trail, houses line the pathway, many of which have lovely gardens, sculptures, bird feeders and bird baths.

Those wanting to take a longer trip can traverse Ben

Cameron Station Linear Park

Virginia

States: Virginia

Counties: Alexandria

Length: 1miles

Trail end points: Ben Brenman Park to Armistead Boothe Park

Trail surfaces: Asphalt

Trail category: Greenway/Non-RT

Trail activities: Bike,Inline
Skating,Wheelchair Accessible,Walking

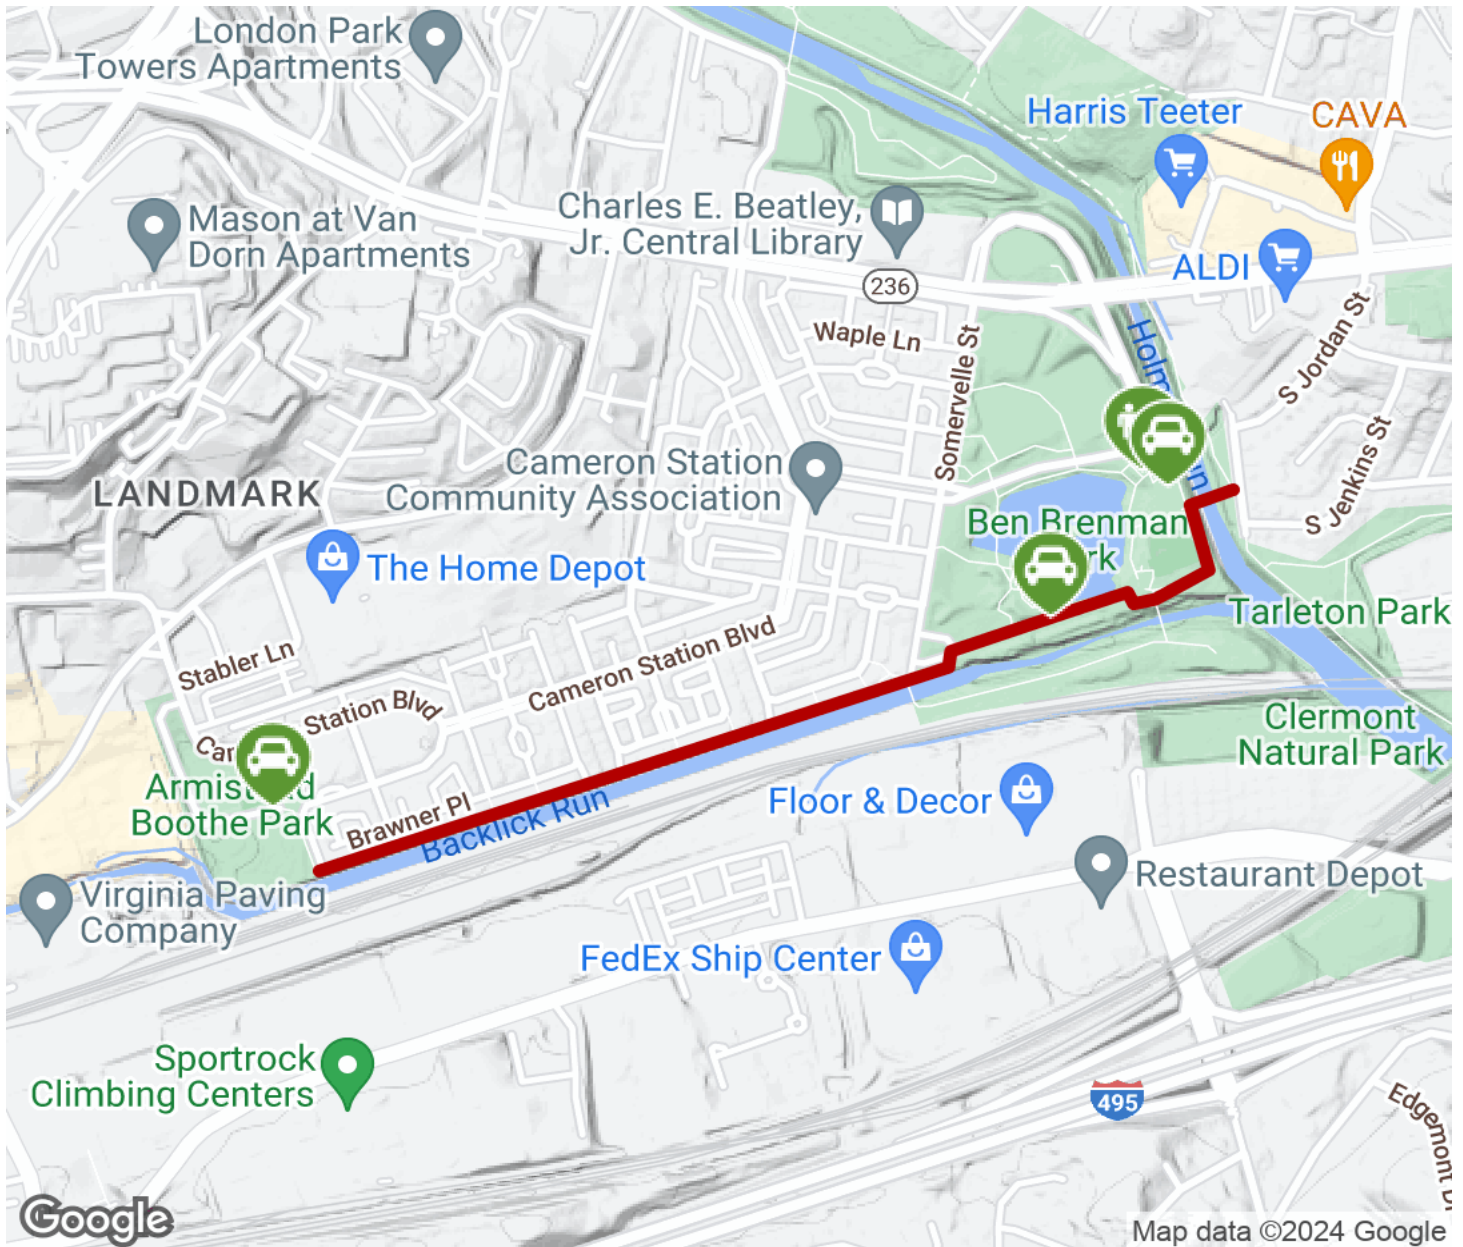

Parking & Trail Access

Parking can be found in Ben Brenman Park (4800 Brenman Park Drive) on the trail's east end and Armistead Boothe Park (520 Cameron Station Boulevard) on its west end.

Cameron Station Linear Park

Virginia

Trailhead

Restroom

Parking

Water Fountain

Tunnel

TrailLink
by Rails-to-Trails Conservancy

TrailLink.com